

Your Roadmap for the Year Ahead

PART 1: Reflect

DREAM A LITTLE!

Use this section to get clear on what matters, what's next, and what's possible for you in the coming year. This isn't a traditional "goal sheet." Start where you are right now. Dream a little. Then write the next true sentence.

What Projects Did I Complete

(Finished? In progress? Let go?)

PART 2: Reset

What kind of writer do I want to be this year?

(Free write 2–3 sentences. Think habits, mindset, identity, not just output.)

Creative habits I'd like to keep in the coming year:

My thoughts & reflections:

PART 3: Prioritize

Projects I want to focus on in next year:
(1-3 max. Prioritize depth over volume!)

 Project 1: _____

Draft Revise Publish

Query Other

 Project 2: _____

Draft Revise Publish

Query Other

 Project 3: _____

Draft Revise Publish

Query Other

PART 4: Define Your Writing Season

What does “realistic consistency” look like for me this year?

(Choose the rhythm that honors your life + creative flow.)

- Daily writing
- 3–5 days/week
- Weekly sessions
- Seasonal deep dives (spring / fall / retreat model)
- Monthly planning + batching

✨ I work best when: _____

✨ I want to protect my writing time by:

Part 5: What Would Feel Like a Win in Next Year?

This can be personal, creative, or professional.
Big or small.

STAY CONNECTED

Need feedback, accountability, or professional eyes on your work?

✦ Sign up for the Technica Editorial newsletter

✦ Book a consult with us for your writing needs at technicaeditorial.com